

IV.....NUMBER 252.

---

Graefenberg Company's Office,
50 Broadway New York

The Company's business in New England has rendered it necessary to reorganize the Eastern Agency there. It is therefore to certify that the New England Branch of the Graefenberg Company is now established at No. 104 North Street, Boston, and that Mr. EDWIN C. HARRIS is appointed Secretary of said Branch, and that he is authorized to sell the famous Local Depot, and to grant rights to vend the company's medicines. It is the Agent must have a certificate with the seal of the Company thereunto signed by its Secretary and countersigned by the President.

The leading article to which public attention is invited, is the REALPHERUS VEGETARIC PILLS of which 20,000 boxes are sold each and every week. The following complaints yield with certainty to their power Asthma Biliary Calculi, etc.

cause a Cough, Croup, Whooping Cough, Laryngitis, 1 per cent solution, GRÆFENBERG'S Green Compound, Heart Medicine, and an emulsion of cod liver oil, and various and various kinds of complaints, Rheumatic, Gout, and various other diseases, and HYPOCHONDRIASIS, the most important relief is placed upon them. Price 25 cents a box.
THE GREEN NERVE Lotion is as follows
For summer complaints, dysentery, and all other diseases of the stomach and bowels it is infallible
Price 25 cents a bottle.

THE GRÆFENBERG'S ANCAPARILLA COMPOUND
Warranted to make two quarts vegetable to any meat. Price 25 cents a bottle.

THE GREEN NERVE VEGETABLE DINTING
Whenever inflammation exists, this Ointment is a sure and speedy cure. Price 25 and 50 cents a box.

THE GRÆFENBERG EYE LOTION
In all disorders of the Eyes this Lotion has equal effect, whether the cause be weakness, or foreign substances in the eyes, or any other eye disease.

THE GRAFENBERG HEALTH BITTERS
where the appetite and clear the skin. Price 25 cents a package.

THE CONSUMPTIVES BALM
This extraordinary article is an infallible possively in Consumption, Bronchitis and Coughs of the Lungs. It is only sent warranted at $1 the Consumptives may be sure of finding in this the most powerful and safe remedy for their hopes in the Grafenberg's Balm will be found in every any for generous distribution may be had on application to any one of the numerous Agents
EDWIN C. HARKES,
Box N & Co.

AGENTS.
D. HUGGIE, Bangor; J. Kirby, Newport,
Wesley & Hays, Lewiston; J. A. Curtis &
Hamden; J. Chas. on, Frankfort; H. G. O' Maburn, Belfast; J. B. Shurtliff, Waterville; the who also the General Agent for Franklin and Somerset and the restoration of former strength and energy. We have also visited our own family in other cases where it is recommended to the family, with interest and sympathy. Very truly, (Signed) SWAIN P. NORDSTROM

[illegible]

The above is one of a thousand similar letters which we have been writing, coming from all parts of the country, almost daily.

BOWEN ELKER is unquestionably the best article known in the case of COLICHS COLCH and WHOPPING COUGH. It is more certain to cure than any other medicine. It is a perfect cure in all cases of WHOPPING COUGH and a perfect cure—than any thing hitherto offered to the public.

In cases of WHOPPING COUGH it needs immediately be tried to give it preference over all other remedies. It immediately breaks up all their attacks, and renders a more perfect cure than any other medicine. For the CROUP it is a positive cure. We speak with confidence, for it has never failed and we believe never will, when used according to directions.

It is a full description to be had of agents in almost every town and village in the country and of the following who are prepared to sell at wholesale or retail:

W. J. ADD,	Bagan.
DAVID HUGGELL
CURTIS & PERAINS,
A. F. GUILD	Okhotsk.
C. B. FINK
H. J. J. RICHARDSON	Stawka & Son.

apr 5

The Great Remedy for Gonorrhoea.

W. L. ELLI, Surgeon, and all analogous complaints, PASTE, DR. DOUGLASS'S ARABIAN GASTE. Dr. Douglass is well known having practiced in the principal cities in the East during the last 30 years. He is only now introducing the Paste in this public manner as the complaints that there are thousands of ill treated complaints in this city—thousands of ill treated who are going down the cancerous stream of life. It must solemnly affirm that during his practice of forty years. This practice has been a few days instance. The only charge of diet or hydrogels from the patient. He has had some of the same symptoms. These cases that have raised the question of treatment and the physician, who has been treated for many years but after taking the Faste for a few days the anorexia symptoms disappeared and the patients were discharged entirely cured. If the undetermined and unknown cause of the disease of the Arabian Faste we should not see so many emaciated bodies and sallow countenances as we do at the present time.

Dr. Faste should fail to effect a cure in the shortest possible time, tax times the price paid for it will be given the practitioners on returning the empty boxes.

For sale by the original inventor and sole proprietor, Dr. PIERRE DOUGLAS at his Office No. 25 Union Street Boston at $3 per box where he can be personally consulted or by any druggist nearest the place. The price of the boxes is $1.00 each. The boxes are of three Whig Caucus!

The Whigs of Bangor and all are requested to assemble at the City Hall on THURSDAY EVENING the 27th day of April, at half past seven o'clock, for the purpose of choosing delegates to attend the District Convention to be held on the fourth day of May next. Also, to choose delegates to attend the State Convention to be held at Augusta on the twenty-fourth of May next.

By order of the City Committee.
April 21, 1849.

[The Boston Atlas is urging with great strength the nomination of Hon Daniel Webster as the candidate for the Presidency. It truly says that "the Whigs of the Union should unite to the consideration of the real hazards of the times and the exigencies of the State, and at this most interesting moment adopt a course honorable and safe to the country. This should be the duty of every Whig in order that our beloved country may be saved from the marts of licentiousness, and the corruption and subservience of James K. Polk. But to reflect this object is not the part of wisdom for the Whigs, who have no excess of strength with which to experiment or bestow their compliments to their favorites, to select for their candidate Gen Taylor, who has the great good of our country? If the best Whigs would do for the country in elevating the most profound and skillful statesman to the Presidency cannot be accomplished, let them not therefore, in doing the best they can for that country, by the election of the right man, honest hearted, good old General Taylor, who will administer the government with prudence, and upon the wise and conservative principles of the Constitution.]

[The Excellency Sir William Colebrook, Lady and Family late Governor of the Province of New Brunswick, proceeded to Boston yesterday in the Steamer Admiral, from whence they will proceed to England by one of the Cunard steamers.]

The New Brunswick says, that the administration of Sir William, although not vigorous, has been marked by much good sense, and an earnest desire to do what was beneficial to the Country. The determined opposition of Sir William to the overbearing tide of corruption has rendered him very unpopular with a certain party, who has spared no pains to injure him in public estimation. But the good that he has done will long survive his administration, and in whatever part of the world he may be cast we wish him health, prosperity and a goodly share of this world's honors.

Lady Colebrooke's uniting benevolence will long be remembered, and we are quite sure we speak the public voice, when we say that her deeds will have come to bless her, long after she has left this sphere. May renewed health and every blessing attend her Ladyship.

[Mr. Moore B. Sears, of Wrentham, calls several varieties of fruit—particularly Apples. The very rich and desirable apple which originated in Hallowell—the Lincoln Pippin, is becoming a great favorite, and should be cultivated by every farmer and fruit grower on account of its fine growth, its productiveness and the great excellence and beauty of the fruit.]

[The report of the proceedings of the Court Martial in Mexico, as it appears in the N Orleans papers, is getting exceedingly rich, in the way, at least, of showing up the relations in which Gen Taylor is held by Mr. First and by others in the army. Mr. T. deems it an unmitigated waste of time and unworthy any attention of trust or confidence. The Leonidas letter is proved upon this doubly General as to his denial of being the author, and he is likely to return to this country, if he should ever be fool enough to return, bankrupt in reputation, and in every track which confers honor upon an officer, or desirable qualities of heart and of head upon man.]

[Several dogs in Newport have recently been attacked by the terrible disease of hydrophobia. Several of them have been killed and it is feared that the dogs generally in the State will be affected by this alarming malady. At this contagious disease should reach this city it would rage among the numerous dogs in the city, like a fearful pestilence, and our whole population would be in imminent peril of their lives.]

Tea and Coffee.
It appears by statistics published in London, that the consumption of coffee in the United States is greater than in England, and the consumption of tea in England is greater than in the United States. The coffee consumption in England is 1 lb 12 1/2 oz per head per annum. The tea consumption on the other hand, is, for England, 1 lb 10 oz per head, and for this country 2 lb per head.

[A writer in the Belfast Journal, for what purpose we do not understand, expresses the opinion that Dr Coolidge has not been proved guilty of the murder of Matthews, but that he is the victim of a conspiracy, and he wishes people to wait and see what will bring forth.]

[The Belfast people are in earnest about their Railroad to Waterlie. Their surveyors are in consequence operations next week, and the Belfast Journal says there can be no doubt of the completion of the road.]

[The Woodstock Telegraph, says, that the case in the upper St. John and the Madawaska, is waiting rapidly. In the latter it has nearly all gone.]

[The Lynn News remarks—How very naturally the attention of the "Lynn Star" of Texas into the Union has been followed by the introduction of some bills into Congress.]

[The paper from New Brunswick, gives the most cheering accounts of the Seal Fisheries, which have been largely carried on this spring.]

[A London paper says Prince Albert's grandfather was the father of twenty six children.]

Telegraphic Despatch to the Portland (Maine) Whig.

By the Lapland from Europe.

Three Days Later News.
Prussia Declared a Republic.

Great Excitement in Paris and Havre.

The great ship Lapland, from New York, arrived at New York, on Thursday, bringing three days later intelligence from Europe.

Among the most important news which were brought by her, is that Prussia has declared a Republic. A dispatch from Berlin states that the greatest excitement prevailed among the people of Prussia, on the 18th inst., in consequence of the King's death. The King was called out at 11 o'clock on the 18th inst., for the purpose of signing a decree which would place in power a new government.

A telegram from Berlin, dated on the 19th inst., states that the King had died at 11 o'clock on the 18th inst., and that the King had been called out at 11 o'clock on the 18th inst., for the purpose of signing a decree which would place in power a new government.

The Prussian government was adopting measures to prevent the republic from being proclaimed. A telegram from Berlin, dated on the 19th inst., states that the King had died at 11 o'clock on the 18th inst., and that the King had been called out at 11 o'clock on the 18th inst., for the purpose of signing a decree which would place in power a new government.

The Prussian government was adopting measures to prevent the republic from being proclaimed. A telegram from Berlin, dated on the 19th inst., states that the King had died at 11 o'clock on the 18th inst., and that the King had been called out at 11 o'clock on the 18th inst., for the purpose of signing a decree which would place in power a new government.

Abolition Riots in Washington—The New Era Office Attacked.

Washington, April 18—10 P. M.
There is an extensive excitement in the streets in consequence of the abolishing of the slaves recently captured in the Bay. This evening a large crowd assembled in front of the office of the New Era, and commenced throwing stones and bricks at the windows.

On Sunday last, a large crowd of abolitionists gathered in front of the office of the New Era, and commenced throwing stones and bricks at the windows. The crowd was dispersed by the police, and the office was damaged.

Arrest of the Chester County Bank Robbers in Mexico.

After a long search, which seems to have failed, the police of the City of Mexico, have at length succeeded in capturing the robbers of the Chester County Bank, who were captured in the City of Mexico.

On Sunday last, a large crowd of abolitionists gathered in front of the office of the New Era, and commenced throwing stones and bricks at the windows. The crowd was dispersed by the police, and the office was damaged.

Philadelphia April 18—9 P. M.
The London Standard has just received intelligence from the City of London, that the office of the New Era, which was captured in the City of London, has been damaged.

Fire in Haverhill, N. H.
The New Hampshire Patriot says, that a fire occurred in Haverhill, N. H., on Monday afternoon, which destroyed a large amount of property.

Storm.
There was a storm on Tuesday night in Chesapeake Bay, which was accompanied by a heavy rain and a strong wind.

Letter from Dr. Coolidge.
Our readers will be glad to hear from the doctor, who has been in the city for some time.

Dean Friend.
I am glad to hear from you, and I am sure you are well.

It appears by statistics published in London, that the consumption of coffee in the United States is greater than in England, and the consumption of tea in England is greater than in the United States.

The coffee consumption in England is 1 lb 12 1/2 oz per head per annum. The tea consumption on the other hand, is, for England, 1 lb 10 oz per head, and for this country 2 lb per head.

A writer in the Belfast Journal, for what purpose we do not understand, expresses the opinion that Dr Coolidge has not been proved guilty of the murder of Matthews, but that he is the victim of a conspiracy, and he wishes people to wait and see what will bring forth.

The Belfast people are in earnest about their Railroad to Waterlie. Their surveyors are in consequence operations next week, and the Belfast Journal says there can be no doubt of the completion of the road.

The Woodstock Telegraph, says, that the case in the upper St. John and the Madawaska, is waiting rapidly. In the latter it has nearly all gone.

The Lynn News remarks—How very naturally the attention of the "Lynn Star" of Texas into the Union has been followed by the introduction of some bills into Congress.

The paper from New Brunswick, gives the most cheering accounts of the Seal Fisheries, which have been largely carried on this spring.

A London paper says Prince Albert's grandfather was the father of twenty six children.

The paper from New Brunswick, gives the most cheering accounts of the Seal Fisheries, which have been largely carried on this spring.

A London paper says Prince Albert's grandfather was the father of twenty six children.

Some plain Thoughts in relation to the Whig Candidates for President.

No IV.

I have reflected considerably on the matter of popular favor towards individuals, and I have come to the conclusion, that when the people, spontaneously, and of one accord, remove by their vote, a man from office, it is a sign that he is a man of no account.

A man, I know, may be forced upon them for their support, they may be deceived by pretence and falsehood, they may, and often doubtless do, give them confidence for a time, to more cunning politicians, in preference to plain men.

But examine the matter, and you will find that all this is not spontaneous, nor the result of sober and unbiased judgment, but of management, party feeling, or a willful deception.

But when the people, in an election, or when men are in power, but by their friends, in the form of a party, and work upon every quarter of the land, without respect, without respect to external influence, as by a common feeling, gravitate towards a man, and pronounce him a favorite, and with one accord, attach themselves to him with the confidence of true friendship.

You may be sure that there is something in that man that justifies and will justify the preference. You may not be able, the people may not be able to explain, in detail, what that something is. And yet you cannot shake their faith in its existence. It is not mere military glory, or achievements that captivate them.

They are not dazzled or confounded. Hundreds of military commanders may exhibit talent, coolness, good judgment, and be successful, and the people may honor them in their position, and yet not for an instant think of them in any other light. These men have no hold on their hearts. They see something, and believe in something, beyond mere deeds of bravery. They see and feel that the man of their selection is a true man, honest, sincere, patriotic, one that sympathizes with humanity—that he has a large heart and clear head, and that he has the firmness to endure and patience to wait.

—that he is a man who will be equal to any task he will consent to do. In short, they believe in him with their whole hearts. Now, there is no doubt that the great mass of the people, the men who vote, and whose votes determine results, have fixed their thoughts upon Gen Taylor for our next President. They may not, perhaps, be found in order in the congregations of politicians, in reading rooms, or in private gatherings of leading men. And therefore, men, who are in these places, and who take their opinions from those around them, and mutually encourage each other, in substituting wishes for facts, may doubt or qualify the assertion, that Gen Taylor is the people's favorite. But let them go out into the country, let them visit the hill sides and the valleys, the farm houses and the work shops, the log cabins, and the lumbermen's camps, and they will be perfectly satisfied that the hero of Buena Vista has obtained a deep hold upon the feelings and the affections, and the good opinions of his countrymen. The feeling is deeply seated, that he is an honest man, of simple, unpretending, plain manners, and of a heart that is full of love for his fellow men. He is a man of a large heart and clear head, and that he has the firmness to endure and patience to wait.

He is a man who will be equal to any task he will consent to do. In short, they believe in him with their whole hearts. Now, there is no doubt that the great mass of the people, the men who vote, and whose votes determine results, have fixed their thoughts upon Gen Taylor for our next President. They may not, perhaps, be found in order in the congregations of politicians, in reading rooms, or in private gatherings of leading men. And therefore, men, who are in these places, and who take their opinions from those around them, and mutually encourage each other, in substituting wishes for facts, may doubt or qualify the assertion, that Gen Taylor is the people's favorite. But let them go out into the country, let them visit the hill sides and the valleys, the farm houses and the work shops, the log cabins, and the lumbermen's camps, and they will be perfectly satisfied that the hero of Buena Vista has obtained a deep hold upon the feelings and the affections, and the good opinions of his countrymen. The feeling is deeply seated, that he is an honest man, of simple, unpretending, plain manners, and of a heart that is full of love for his fellow men. He is a man of a large heart and clear head, and that he has the firmness to endure and patience to wait.

He is a man who will be equal to any task he will consent to do. In short, they believe in him with their whole hearts. Now, there is no doubt that the great mass of the people, the men who vote, and whose votes determine results, have fixed their thoughts upon Gen Taylor for our next President. They may not, perhaps, be found in order in the congregations of politicians, in reading rooms, or in private gatherings of leading men. And therefore, men, who are in these places, and who take their opinions from those around them, and mutually encourage each other, in substituting wishes for facts, may doubt or qualify the assertion, that Gen Taylor is the people's favorite. But let them go out into the country, let them visit the hill sides and the valleys, the farm houses and the work shops, the log cabins, and the lumbermen's camps, and they will be perfectly satisfied that the hero of Buena Vista has obtained a deep hold upon the feelings and the affections, and the good opinions of his countrymen. The feeling is deeply seated, that he is an honest man, of simple, unpretending, plain manners, and of a heart that is full of love for his fellow men. He is a man of a large heart and clear head, and that he has the firmness to endure and patience to wait.

He is a man who will be equal to any task he will consent to do. In short, they believe in him with their whole hearts. Now, there is no doubt that the great mass of the people, the men who vote, and whose votes determine results, have fixed their thoughts upon Gen Taylor for our next President. They may not, perhaps, be found in order in the congregations of politicians, in reading rooms, or in private gatherings of leading men. And therefore, men, who are in these places, and who take their opinions from those around them, and mutually encourage each other, in substituting wishes for facts, may doubt or qualify the assertion, that Gen Taylor is the people's favorite. But let them go out into the country, let them visit the hill sides and the valleys, the farm houses and the work shops, the log cabins, and the lumbermen's camps, and they will be perfectly satisfied that the hero of Buena Vista has obtained a deep hold upon the feelings and the affections, and the good opinions of his countrymen. The feeling is deeply seated, that he is an honest man, of simple, unpretending, plain manners, and of a heart that is full of love for his fellow men. He is a man of a large heart and clear head, and that he has the firmness to endure and patience to wait.

He is a man who will be equal to any task he will consent to do. In short, they believe in him with their whole hearts. Now, there is no doubt that the great mass of the people, the men who vote, and whose votes determine results, have fixed their thoughts upon Gen Taylor for our next President. They may not, perhaps, be found in order in the congregations of politicians, in reading rooms, or in private gatherings of leading men. And therefore, men, who are in these places, and who take their opinions from those around them, and mutually encourage each other, in substituting wishes for facts, may doubt or qualify the assertion, that Gen Taylor is the people's favorite. But let them go out into the country, let them visit the hill sides and the valleys, the farm houses and the work shops, the log cabins, and the lumbermen's camps, and they will be perfectly satisfied that the hero of Buena Vista has obtained a deep hold upon the feelings and the affections, and the good opinions of his countrymen. The feeling is deeply seated, that he is an honest man, of simple, unpretending, plain manners, and of a heart that is full of love for his fellow men. He is a man of a large heart and clear head, and that he has the firmness to endure and patience to wait.

He is a man who will be equal to any task he will consent to do. In short, they believe in him with their whole hearts. Now, there is no doubt that the great mass of the people, the men who vote, and whose votes determine results, have fixed their thoughts upon Gen Taylor for our next President. They may not, perhaps, be found in order in the congregations of politicians, in reading rooms, or in private gatherings of leading men. And therefore, men, who are in these places, and who take their opinions from those around them, and mutually encourage each other, in substituting wishes for facts, may doubt or qualify the assertion, that Gen Taylor is the people's favorite. But let them go out into the country, let them visit the hill sides and the valleys, the farm houses and the work shops, the log cabins, and the lumbermen's camps, and they will be perfectly satisfied that the hero of Buena Vista has obtained a deep hold upon the feelings and the affections, and the good opinions of his countrymen. The feeling is deeply seated, that he is an honest man, of simple, unpretending, plain manners, and of a heart that is full of love for his fellow men. He is a man of a large heart and clear head, and that he has the firmness to endure and patience to wait.

He is a man who will be equal to any task he will consent to do. In short, they believe in him with their whole hearts. Now, there is no doubt that the great mass of the people, the men who vote, and whose votes determine results, have fixed their thoughts upon Gen Taylor for our next President. They may not, perhaps, be found in order in the congregations of politicians, in reading rooms, or in private gatherings of leading men. And therefore, men, who are in these places, and who take their opinions from those around them, and mutually encourage each other, in substituting wishes for facts, may doubt or qualify the assertion, that Gen Taylor is the people's favorite. But let them go out into the country, let them visit the hill sides and the valleys, the farm houses and the work shops, the log cabins, and the lumbermen's camps, and they will be perfectly satisfied that the hero of Buena Vista has obtained a deep hold upon the feelings and the affections, and the good opinions of his countrymen. The feeling is deeply seated, that he is an honest man, of simple, unpretending, plain manners, and of a heart that is full of love for his fellow men. He is a man of a large heart and clear head, and that he has the firmness to endure and patience to wait.

He is a man who will be equal to any task he will consent to do. In short, they believe in him with their whole hearts. Now, there is no doubt that the great mass of the people, the men who vote, and whose votes determine results, have fixed their thoughts upon Gen Taylor for our next President. They may not, perhaps, be found in order in the congregations of politicians, in reading rooms, or in private gatherings of leading men. And therefore, men, who are in these places, and who take their opinions from those around them, and mutually encourage each other, in substituting wishes for facts, may doubt or qualify the assertion, that Gen Taylor is the people's favorite. But let them go out into the country, let them visit the hill sides and the valleys, the farm houses and the work shops, the log cabins, and the lumbermen's camps, and they will be perfectly satisfied that the hero of Buena Vista has obtained a deep hold upon the feelings and the affections, and the good opinions of his countrymen. The feeling is deeply seated, that he is an honest man, of simple, unpretending, plain manners, and of a heart that is full of love for his fellow men. He is a man of a large heart and clear head, and that he has the firmness to endure and patience to wait.

He is a man who will be equal to any task he will consent to do. In short, they believe in him with their whole hearts. Now, there is no doubt that the great mass of the people, the men who vote, and whose votes determine results, have fixed their thoughts upon Gen Taylor for our next President. They may not, perhaps, be found in order in the congregations of politicians, in reading rooms, or in private gatherings of leading men. And therefore, men, who are in these places, and who take their opinions from those around them, and mutually encourage each other, in substituting wishes for facts, may doubt or qualify the assertion, that Gen Taylor is the people's favorite. But let them go out into the country, let them visit the hill sides and the valleys, the farm houses and the work shops, the log cabins, and the lumbermen's camps, and they will be perfectly satisfied that the hero of Buena Vista has obtained a deep hold upon the feelings and the affections, and the good opinions of his countrymen. The feeling is deeply seated, that he is an honest man, of simple, unpretending, plain manners, and of a heart that is full of love for his fellow men. He is a man of a large heart and clear head, and that he has the firmness to endure and patience to wait.

He is a man who will be equal to any task he will consent to do. In short, they believe in him with their whole hearts. Now, there is no doubt that the great mass of the people, the men who vote, and whose votes determine results, have fixed their thoughts upon Gen Taylor for our next President. They may not, perhaps, be found in order in the congregations of politicians, in reading rooms, or in private gatherings of leading men. And therefore, men, who are in these places, and who take their opinions from those around them, and mutually encourage each other, in substituting wishes for facts, may doubt or qualify the assertion, that Gen Taylor is the people's favorite. But let them go out into the country, let them visit the hill sides and the valleys, the farm houses and the work shops, the log cabins, and the lumbermen's camps, and they will be perfectly satisfied that the hero of Buena Vista has obtained a deep hold upon the feelings and the affections, and the good opinions of his countrymen. The feeling is deeply seated, that he is an honest man, of simple, unpretending, plain manners, and of a heart that is full of love for his fellow men. He is a man of a large heart and clear head, and that he has the firmness to endure and patience to wait.

He is a man who will be equal to any task he will consent to do. In short, they believe in him with their whole hearts. Now, there is no doubt that the great mass of the people, the men who vote, and whose votes determine results, have fixed their thoughts upon Gen Taylor for our next President. They may not, perhaps, be found in order in the congregations of politicians, in reading rooms, or in private gatherings of leading men. And therefore, men, who are in these places, and who take their opinions from those around them, and mutually encourage each other, in substituting wishes for facts, may doubt or qualify the assertion, that Gen Taylor is the people's favorite. But let them go out into the country, let them visit the hill sides and the valleys, the farm houses and the work shops, the log cabins, and the lumbermen's camps, and they will be perfectly satisfied that the hero of Buena Vista has obtained a deep hold upon the feelings and the affections, and the good opinions of his countrymen. The feeling is deeply seated, that he is an honest man, of simple, unpretending, plain manners, and of a heart that is full of love for his fellow men. He is a man of a large heart and clear head, and that he has the firmness to endure and patience to wait.

He is a man who will be equal to any task he will consent to do. In short, they believe in him with their whole hearts. Now, there is no doubt that the great mass of the people, the men who vote, and whose votes determine results, have fixed their thoughts upon Gen Taylor for our next President. They may not, perhaps, be found in order in the congregations of politicians, in reading rooms, or in private gatherings of leading men. And therefore, men, who are in these places, and who take their opinions from those around them, and mutually encourage each other, in substituting wishes for facts, may doubt or qualify the assertion, that Gen Taylor is the people's favorite. But let them go out into the country, let them visit the hill sides and the valleys, the farm houses and the work shops, the log cabins, and the lumbermen's camps, and they will be perfectly satisfied that the hero of Buena Vista has obtained a deep hold upon the feelings and the affections, and the good opinions of his countrymen. The feeling is deeply seated, that he is an honest man, of simple, unpretending, plain manners, and of a heart that is full of love for his fellow men. He is a man of a large heart and clear head, and that he has the firmness to endure and patience to wait.

He is a man who will be equal to any task he will consent to do. In short, they believe in him with their whole hearts. Now, there is no doubt that the great mass of the people, the men who vote, and whose votes determine results, have fixed their thoughts upon Gen Taylor for our next President. They may not, perhaps, be found in order in the congregations of politicians, in reading rooms, or in private gatherings of leading men. And therefore, men, who are in these places, and who take their opinions from those around them, and mutually encourage each other, in substituting wishes for facts, may doubt or qualify the assertion, that Gen Taylor is the people's favorite. But let them go out into the country, let them visit the hill sides and the valleys, the farm houses and the work shops, the log cabins, and the lumbermen's camps, and they will be perfectly satisfied that the hero of Buena Vista has obtained a deep hold upon the feelings and the affections, and the good opinions of his countrymen. The feeling is deeply seated, that he is an honest man, of simple, unpretending, plain manners, and of a heart that is full of love for his fellow men. He is a man of a large heart and clear head, and that he has the firmness to endure and patience to wait.

He is a man who will be equal to any task he will consent to do. In short, they believe in him with their whole hearts. Now, there is no doubt that the great mass of the people, the men who vote, and whose votes determine results, have fixed their thoughts upon Gen Taylor for our next President. They may not, perhaps, be found in order in the congregations of politicians, in reading rooms, or in private gatherings of leading men. And therefore, men, who are in these places, and who take their opinions from those around them, and mutually encourage each other, in substituting wishes for facts, may doubt or qualify the assertion, that Gen Taylor is the people's favorite. But let them go out into the country, let them visit the hill sides and the valleys, the farm houses and the work shops, the log cabins, and the lumbermen's camps, and they will be perfectly satisfied that the hero of Buena Vista has obtained a deep hold upon the feelings and the affections, and the good opinions of his countrymen. The feeling is deeply seated, that he is an honest man, of simple, unpretending, plain manners, and of a heart that is full of love for his fellow men. He is a man of a large heart and clear head, and that he has the firmness to endure and patience to wait.

He is a man who will be equal to any task he will consent to do. In short, they believe in him with their whole hearts. Now, there is no doubt that the great mass of the people, the men who vote, and whose votes determine results, have fixed their thoughts upon Gen Taylor for our next President. They may not, perhaps, be found in order in the congregations of politicians, in reading rooms, or in private gatherings of leading men. And therefore, men, who are in these places, and who take their opinions from those around them, and mutually encourage each other, in substituting wishes for facts, may doubt or qualify the assertion, that Gen Taylor is the people's favorite. But let them go out into the country, let them visit the hill sides and the valleys, the farm houses and the work shops, the log cabins, and the lumbermen's camps, and they will be perfectly satisfied that the hero of Buena Vista has obtained a deep hold upon the feelings and the affections, and the good opinions of his countrymen. The feeling is deeply seated, that he is an honest man, of simple, unpretending, plain manners, and of a heart that is full of love for his fellow men. He is a man of a large heart and clear head, and that he has the firmness to endure and patience to wait.

He is a man who will be equal to any task he will consent to do. In short, they believe in him with their whole hearts. Now, there is no doubt that the great mass of the people, the men who vote, and whose votes determine results, have fixed their thoughts upon Gen Taylor for our next President. They may not, perhaps, be found in order in the congregations of politicians, in reading rooms, or in private gatherings of leading men. And therefore, men, who are in these places, and who take their opinions from those around them, and mutually encourage each other, in substituting wishes for facts, may doubt or qualify the assertion, that Gen Taylor is the people's favorite. But let them go out into the country, let them visit the hill sides and the valleys, the farm houses and the work shops, the log cabins, and the lumbermen's camps, and they will be perfectly satisfied that the hero of Buena Vista has obtained a deep hold upon the feelings and the affections, and the good opinions of his countrymen. The feeling is deeply seated, that he is an honest man, of simple, unpretending, plain manners, and of a heart that is full of love for his fellow men. He is a man of a large heart and clear head, and that he has the firmness to endure and patience to wait.

He is a man who will be equal to any task he will consent to do. In short, they believe in him with their whole hearts. Now, there is no doubt that the great mass of the people, the men who vote, and whose votes determine results, have fixed their thoughts upon Gen Taylor for our next President. They may not, perhaps, be found in order in the congregations of politicians, in reading rooms, or in private gatherings of leading men. And therefore, men, who are in these places, and who take their opinions from those around them, and mutually encourage each other, in substituting wishes for facts, may doubt or qualify the assertion, that Gen Taylor is the people's favorite. But let them go out into the country, let them visit the hill sides and the valleys, the farm houses and the work shops, the log cabins, and the lumbermen's camps, and they will be perfectly satisfied that the hero of Buena Vista has obtained a deep hold upon the feelings and the affections, and the good opinions of his countrymen. The feeling is deeply seated, that he is an honest man, of simple, unpretending, plain manners, and of a heart that is full of love for his fellow men. He is a man of a large heart and clear head, and that he has the firmness to endure and patience to wait.

He is a man who will be equal to any task he will consent to do. In short, they believe in him with their whole hearts. Now, there is no doubt that the great mass of the people, the men who vote, and whose votes determine results, have fixed their thoughts upon Gen Taylor for our next President. They may not, perhaps, be found in order in the congregations of politicians, in reading rooms, or in private gatherings of leading men. And therefore, men, who are in these places, and who take their opinions from those around them, and mutually encourage each other, in substituting wishes for facts, may doubt or qualify the assertion, that Gen Taylor is the people's favorite. But let them go out into the country, let them visit the hill sides and the valleys, the farm houses and the work shops, the log cabins, and the lumbermen's camps, and they will be perfectly satisfied that the hero of Buena Vista has obtained a deep hold upon the feelings and the affections, and the good opinions of his countrymen. The feeling is deeply seated, that he is an honest man, of simple, unpretending, plain manners, and of a heart that is full of love for his fellow men. He is a man of a large heart and clear head, and that he has the firmness to endure and patience to wait.

He is a man who will be equal to any task he will consent to do. In short, they believe in him with their whole hearts. Now, there is no doubt that the great mass of the people, the men who vote, and whose votes determine results, have fixed their thoughts upon Gen Taylor for our next President. They may not, perhaps, be found in order in the congregations of politicians, in reading rooms, or in private gatherings of leading men. And therefore, men, who are in these places, and who take their opinions from those around them, and mutually encourage each other, in substituting wishes for facts, may doubt or qualify the assertion, that Gen Taylor is the people's favorite. But let them go out into the country, let them visit the hill sides and the valleys, the farm houses and the work shops, the log cabins, and the lumbermen's camps, and they will be perfectly satisfied that the hero of Buena Vista has obtained a deep hold upon the feelings and the affections, and the good opinions of his countrymen. The feeling is deeply seated, that he is an honest man, of simple, unpretending, plain manners, and of a heart that is full of love for his fellow men. He is a man of a large heart and clear head, and that he has the firmness to endure and patience to wait.

He is a man who will be equal to any task he will consent to do. In short, they believe in him with their whole hearts. Now, there is no doubt that the great mass of the people, the men who vote, and whose votes determine results, have fixed their thoughts upon Gen Taylor for our next President. They may not, perhaps, be found in order in the congregations of politicians, in reading rooms, or in private gatherings of leading men. And therefore, men, who are in these places, and who take their opinions from those around them, and mutually encourage each other, in substituting wishes for facts, may doubt or qualify the assertion, that Gen Taylor is the people's favorite. But let them go out into the country, let them visit the hill sides and the valleys, the farm houses and the work shops, the log cabins, and the lumbermen's camps, and they will be perfectly satisfied that the hero of Buena Vista has obtained a deep hold upon the feelings and the affections, and the good opinions of his countrymen. The feeling is deeply seated, that he is an honest man, of simple, unpretending, plain manners, and of a heart that is full of love for his fellow men. He is a man of a large heart and clear head, and that he has the firmness to endure and patience to wait.

He is a man who will be equal to any task he will consent to do. In short, they believe in him with their whole hearts. Now, there is no doubt that the great mass of the people, the men who vote, and whose votes determine results, have fixed their thoughts upon Gen Taylor for our next President. They may not, perhaps, be found in order in the congregations of politicians, in reading rooms, or in private gatherings of leading men. And therefore, men, who are in these places, and who take their opinions from those around them, and mutually encourage each other, in substituting wishes for facts, may doubt or qualify the assertion, that Gen Taylor is the people's favorite. But let them go out into the country, let them visit the hill sides and the valleys, the farm houses and the work shops, the log cabins, and the lumbermen's camps, and they will be perfectly satisfied that the hero of Buena Vista has obtained a deep hold upon the feelings and the affections, and the good opinions of his countrymen. The feeling is deeply seated, that he is an honest man, of simple, unpretending, plain manners, and of a heart that is full of love for his fellow men. He is a man of a large heart and clear head, and that he has the firmness to endure and patience to wait.

He is a man who will be equal to any task he will consent to do. In short, they believe in him with their whole hearts. Now, there is no doubt that the great mass of the people, the men who vote, and whose votes determine results, have fixed their thoughts upon Gen Taylor for our next President. They may not, perhaps, be found in order in the congregations of politicians, in reading rooms, or in private gatherings of leading men. And therefore, men, who are in these places, and who take their opinions from those around them, and mutually encourage each other, in substituting wishes for facts, may doubt or qualify the assertion, that Gen Taylor is the people's favorite. But let them go out into the country, let them visit the hill sides and the valleys, the farm houses and the work shops, the log cabins, and the lumbermen's camps, and they will be perfectly satisfied that the hero of Buena Vista has obtained a deep hold upon the feelings and the affections, and the good opinions of his countrymen. The feeling is deeply seated, that he is an honest man, of simple, unpretending, plain manners, and of a heart that is full of love for his fellow men. He is a man of a large heart and clear head, and that he has the firmness to endure and patience to wait.

He is a man who will be equal to any task he will consent to do. In short, they believe in him with their whole hearts. Now, there is no doubt that the great mass of the people, the men who vote, and whose votes determine results, have fixed their thoughts upon Gen Taylor for our next President. They may not, perhaps, be found in order in the congregations of politicians, in reading rooms, or in private gatherings of leading men. And therefore, men, who are in these places, and who take their opinions from those around them, and mutually encourage each other, in substituting wishes for facts, may doubt or qualify the assertion, that Gen Taylor is the people's favorite. But let them go out into the country, let them visit the hill sides and the valleys, the farm houses and the work shops, the log cabins, and the lumbermen's camps, and they will be perfectly satisfied that the hero of Buena Vista has obtained a deep hold upon the feelings and the affections, and the good opinions of his countrymen. The feeling is deeply seated, that he is an honest man, of simple, unpretending, plain manners, and of a heart that is full of love for his fellow men. He is a man of a large heart and clear head, and that he has the firmness to endure and patience to wait.

always remain, in relation to that party, "as arguments as does."

We may have plenty of hilling and cooling—mutual congratulations and assurances of success—high wrought enthusiasm and apparently overwhelming demonstrations—calculations without number, all showing a favorable total, and proofs abundant, that the Whig doctrine is true and right and ought to prevail—and yet there glorious campaign, the old result will again leave us the solitary conclusion, that we have been defeated in a good cause, and with a good candidate. Whatever of pleasure there is in such a conclusion, we have experienced so often, that it beg us to pull upon the task, and loan its original powers to satisfy the desires of men. The appetite praves some variety, and would prefer to once at least to try the effect of a little success.

Union.

CONGRESS.

Washington, April 19, 1848.

In the Senate.
Mr Hale referred to the Senate an unfavorable report of the District of Columbia, on account of the attempted escape of the slaves. The Senate took up the bill to allow the N Orleans and New York steamers to touch at Havana.

On motion of Mr Ashley, the bill granting judicial power to American Consuls at China, Turkey, &c, was made the special order for Monday next.

On motion of Mr Bagley, the Senate went into executive business, and afterwards adjourned.

In the House of Representatives, the New York election case was taken up, and Mr Munroe and Mr Jackson addressed the House. A resolution offered by Mr Hart and Mr Jenks was rejected, and the resolutions of the Committee on Elections, that Jackson was

